HIGHLAND BUS DRIVER IDENTIFIES CAR THAT KNOCKED BUS OFF ROAD

Sped Away While John F. Fenwick Died of Injuries—Man Found Driving Car Later Present at Coroner's Inquest, For Which There Are 40 Witnesses.

That there is some evidence of the identity of the driver of the car that struck the Highland bus near Esopus on September 1, was disclosed at the official investigation of the accident before Coroner Sulter at the court house this morning. In the inquest into the cause of the death of John F. Fenwick, who was killed in the collision, about 40 witnesses have been summoned. The inquest is not likely to be closed today. Assistant District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and Attorney W. L. Leht of Highland appeared at the district attorney's office and for the widow of John F. Fenwick, the driver of the bus.

KADER IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Judge Harry E. Schirick after a hearing in police court this morning held Hassan Kader, a Greek, to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of corrupting the morals of a fifteen year old girl who lives on North Front street. It is claimed that Kader and the girl registered for the night at the Mitten House on North Front street. Judge Schirick stated that as there had been some evidence produced that a rape charge might be considered he thought it advisable for the grand jury to investigate the case, and for that reason fixed the amount of bail at $2,500, and demanded the furnishing of a surety bond.

MICHIGAN MOVES AGAINST HOUSE OF DAVID

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 27.—The state of Michigan is planning to take the courts to abate the House of David as a common nuisance. It was learned today. Such an action, it was explained, would be prosecuted in much the same manner as a city might move to abate a blue factory in a residential neighborhood. It will probably supplant the suit now on file in circuit court here, by which dissolution of the Israelite Colony at Benton Harbor is sought through quo warranto proceedings.

TWO DEAD TRYING TO ESCAPE PRISON

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 27.—Two men, one already condemned to die, are dead and another perhaps fatally wounded, as the result of an attempted jail delivery here early today. The dead: C. E. Gaines, occupant of the "death house," to have hanged for murder. Willie Champion, assistant jailer. Critically injured. Peter Welk, facing forty years sentence for complicity in murder.

WHISKEY BANDITS GET EIGHT TRUCKLOADS

Bristol, Pa., Sept. 27.—Binding and gagging guards at the warehouse of the Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distilling Company at Edgington, a group of bandits, estimated at thirty or more, escaped with liquor valued at thousands of dollars early today. State police have taken up the trail, while a description of the bandits has been sent broadcast. Eight trucks were used by the bandits.

Abandoned Car Claimed

The abandoned American Six car found by Police Captain Richter, of Saugerties, near Abbotts on the state road on Monday, has been claimed by Peter R. DeBrake, of 64th street, New York city, who came to Saugerties on Tuesday and drove the car back home. It was said the car had been stolen from the state's case, and Mr. DeBrake obtained his information regarding the finding of the car through the New York police, who had been notified by the Saugerties police.

Ford Car in Collision

The Ford car of David A. Whitaker, who resides on Market street, Saugerties, was damaged on Tuesday afternoon, when a Studebaker car, owner's name not ascertained, was in collision with it on the Kingston road near the Red House. The Ford was towed in by Snyder's wrecker. The front and left side of the Ford was bent and battered. The number on the Studebaker was obtained and reported to the police.

Kiersted Paid $5 Fine

William Kiersted was found drunk on North Front street on Wednesday and placed under arrest. His motorcycle, which he was not riding at the time, was placed in Marshall Roosa's garage. This morning Judge Schirick imposed a fine of $5 which was paid.

Clash At Annenberg

Annenberg, Germany, Sept. 27.—Many persons were wounded in violent clashes between communists and police here today.

FIRE DESTROYS MICHAUD HOTEL

Deputy Chief Drove Out There In Response to Mysterious Call and Found No Blaze—He Came Back: Hotel Burned.

Fire early this morning destroyed the hotel property on the Saugerties road which is known locally as the Michaud Hotel. How the fire started is not known and the building which was of frame construction was reduced to ashes in a short time.

Someone who claimed to be at the hotel called the sheriff's office and Night Jailer Seth Jocelyn who answered the phone was informed that the hotel was on fire and asked that the sheriff come out at once. Mr. Jocelyn informed them that the sheriff could do nothing and suggested that they get in communication with the fire department. A call was sent in to the central station and Deputy Chief Murphy was asked to send out the fire apparatus. The person calling stated that the fire was in a room and they were unable to reach the blaze. As there is no water in the vicinity the local fire apparatus would be of little use and this information was given the party who called.

However, in order to render any assistance which they could Deputy Chief Murphy drove out the Saugerties road a quarter of an hour after the phone call was received and did not see any evidence of fire at the hotel. Shortly after arriving back in town however the blaze was noticed against the sky.

The Reed House which formerly occupied the site of the building destroyed by fire early this morning, was also destroyed by fire.

30 HURT IN CRASH OF BUFFALO STREET CARS

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Thirty persons were hurt, some of them seriously when street cars crashed together here this morning. These persons have been admitted to hospitals:

Frank Corwally, 45 years old, Sophia Kowalewski, 17 years old, Stephen Polozon, badly bruised, John Kreiner, 40 years old, dislocated shoulder, Joseph Holeski, 67 years old, probably fractured skull, John Schrader, 33 years old, Ignace Jasinski, 25 years old, Alex Lanaso, 27 years old, John Halenski, 35 years old. The last four named suffered minor injuries.

NATIONALLY KNOWN EDUCATOR DIES AT 71

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Living to within five days of his ninety-first birthday, Dr. James M. Casserty, nationally known educator, and for twenty-nine years principal of the State Normal School, is dead here.

Of all the Harvard graduates, Dr. Casserty was the oldest in this state, having graduated with the class of 1856. Dr. Casserty was a personal friend of Henry W. Longfellow, poet, who taught him French. Because he was so advanced in his knowledge of pedagogy, in 1853, the University of Rochester awarded him a Ph.D. degree.

Coal Prices Are Advanced 40 Cents On Most Household Sizes

Retail coal prices in Kingston have been advanced. Egg stove and range coal now sells for $13.40 per ton delivered, less 40 cents per ton for cash. The former price was $12.85, less 25 cents per ton for cash. Pea coal now sells for $12 per ton, less 40 cents per ton for cash. The old price was $11.30, less 25 cents a ton for cash.

It will be seen by the above schedule that the retail prices have not jumped as high as was expected when the terms of the settlement of the threatened hard coal strike were made public several weeks ago.

ONE VITAL POINT IN WARD CASE

Defense Failed To Prove Weapon Ward Produced As Peters's Was Not One Given Ward, Says Sherman.

Courthouse, White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The liberty—perhaps the life—of Walter S. Ward, centered today around one question, the ownership of a .32 calibre Smith and Wesson regulation pistol.

"Was it the property of Clarence M. Peters, 19 year old Haverhill, Mass., sailor, slain by Ward on the night of May 15, 1922?"

"Or does it rightfully belong to Ward himself, a Christmas gift made in 1920 by Frank Cody, chief of police of New Rochelle, N. Y.?"

The answer to these two questions Attorney General Carl Sherman said in his closing argument today formed the entire basis of the state's case against the thirty year old millionaire.

"If this gun is not the gun that Chief Cody gave Ward then where is the pistol which was presented him?" Sherman thundered this question to the jury as he waved above his head the two weapons which had been introduced as evidence in the case, the blue steel .32 calibre Colt automatic with which he killed Peters, and the black regulation Smith and Wesson.

"Gentlemen of the jury, I tell you, and you know that if this gun, this Smith and Wesson, belonged to Clarence Peters, Walter Ward would have brought the pistol which Cody gave him here to court and exhibited it to you."

"But he couldn't do that for this is the gun. He planted it, not cleverly beside the body of Peters, but around with it nine days later with a plea that he believed."

Court House, White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 27.—There was but slight probability that the fate of Walter S. Ward, on trial charged with the murder of Clarence M. Peters, of Haverhill, Mass., would be given to the jury today.

By an ancient custom of New York state courts, a jury in a murder trial is scarcely ever "charged" at an afternoon session.

In the history of the state, it has been the custom of the courts to read instructions in the morning. It is not a law, however, and if Justice Wagner so desires, he may violate this ancient rule and give his instructions some time this afternoon.

The challenge of Judge I. N. Mills, venerable leader of Ward's defense force, to New York's youthful attorney general, Carl Sherman, to personally sum up the closing argument in the case, was understood to have been accepted. The report was of keenest disappointment to the throngs of spectators, some of whom stood jammed against the court house doors at 7 o'clock this morning.

At 8 o'clock more than 200 persons had gathered.

The court room doors were opened at 9:15 o'clock and every seat was immediately filled. Five minutes later, standing room was at a premium, more than two score persons, the majority of them women, were standing in the back aisles of the court room.

A majority of the spectators said they were attracted to today's hearing, first in the hope of hearing Thomas J. O'Neil, assistant prosecutor, close the state's case, and second in the hope that Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, who collapsed yesterday, would again prove the dramatic figure of yesterday's session.

It is admitted that the most damaging bit of evidence in the case centers about the revolver, which Ward claims to have taken from the hand of Peters after death.

Police Chief Frank Cody, of New Rochelle, testified on the stand that this weapon—a .32 calibre Smith and Wesson regulation pistol—was "exactly like one given to Ward in 1921."

The state in its closing argument was expected to stress the point that the weapon on exhibit in the case is not the same revolver referred to by Cody. It was the bounden duty of either of them at the time of the killing or on the witness stand during his trial to produce the gun which Cody actually gave him.

Ward, accompanied by his wife, arrived in court at ten o'clock. Mrs. Ward looked pale, but she said she had had a restful night and felt confident she would be able to stand today's ordeal. Judge Mills called attention to the fact that she suffered a nervous breakdown several months ago and stated that "it was just superhuman courage which made it possible for her to attend today's

BERLIN NAMES NATIONAL DICTATOR TO MEET BAVARIAN MOVE AIMED AT REPUBLICAN FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Mussolini-Like Rule at Berlin is What Bavarian Monarchists Seek, Not Separation, They Say—Their Weakness is That They Are in Two Factions, Von Kahr Forbidding Hitler Meetings—Little Disorder.

Dr. Telegraph to The Freeman.

After slightly more than half a century's existence the German Empire, formerly the dominating power of continental Europe, is threatened with dissolution today.

A dictator has been appointed at Berlin to counteract the action of the Bavarian nationalists in appointing a dictator for that state. The revolutionary movement is strong in Bavaria which is the hotbed of monarchist and anti-socialist feeling in the German nation.

Fostered by outside influences the secessionists in Rhineland are more active than ever before. It is understood they plan to proclaim a Rhenish Republic Sunday.

Saxony is ready to join with Russia.

Unless the federal government in Berlin is able to check the movement Germany within the next few weeks may break up into several small states. Berlin has the advantage of controlling the army and navy and may be able to prevent a national collapse. Its position has been weakened morally by surrendering unconditionally to France on the reparations issue.

Bavaria has proclaimed the Versailles treaty null and void. The nationalists leaders are openly denouncing the Berlin government for surrendering to France. General Ludendorff, former chief of staff to Von Hindenburg, is credited with being partly responsible for the nationalist coup. He is now a resident of Bavaria.

The civil rights of all Bavarian citizens have been suspended. The Bavarian leaders deny any idea of despotism, calling their movement a "constitutional dictatorship."

Munich, Sept. 27.—Reichswehr (German federal troops) today were placed upon an armed footing throughout Bavaria and ordered to resist disorders with force. For several days the Reichswehr massed along the Bavarian and Saxonian frontiers have been receiving reinforcements. They are supported with artillery and machine guns.

Dictator Von Kahr issued a proclamation this afternoon forbidding Hitler mass meetings.

Up to early afternoon, no disorders had been reported but there was an atmosphere of keen tension. Hotels and other public houses were deserted. Owing to the anti-Jewish feeling many Jews are leaving this city. Foreigners, fearing an outbreak of fighting are departing also.

The Socialist Democratic workers' council congress, scheduled for this afternoon, has been suppressed.

Von Kahr has the complete confidence of the Bavarian monarchists, although he is not connected in any way with the Bavarian Fascist organization by Dr. Hitler. His relations with former Crown Prince Rupprecht has been close.

Von Kahr is leader of the so-called "fatherland" group which up to the present, has been hostile to the "national socialists" as the Fascists are called in Bavaria.

It is possible Von Kahr and Hitler may join forces later on. The tenor of the whole Bavarian movement is against separation from the rest of the German state, but is designed to show an aggressive front to Berlin with a view to driving the Socialists out of power and creating a strong government such as Mussolini has put in power in Italy. Bavaria wants to be the dominant force in such a government.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—Minister of Defense Gessler today was appointed dictator of the German nation with full executive powers.

One of the first actions of Dictator Gessler was to appoint General Von Lossow, of Munich, commander-in-chief of the Reichswehr in Bavaria. General Von Lossow was relieved of responsibility to the Bavarian authorities, reporting only to Berlin.

"There is no reason for undue alarm," Dictator Lossow told International News, in an exclusive statement. "The situation is well in hand. The government has sufficient power and the means to preserve order."

Previously Bavaria had announced the appointment of former Premier Von Kahr as "general commissioner" of Bavaria, with full powers of an executive.

President Ebert has proclaimed "a state of emergency" existing throughout the German nation. This is not a condition of martial law, but simply the application of article 48 of the new constitution, which gives extraordinary powers to the government.

As the situation exists today there are two dictators in Germany—Gessler and Von Kahr. Bavaria acted first. President Ebert then went into consultation with Chancellor Stresemann and at 1:00 this morning an announcement was made that Dr. Gessler had been appointed dictator for the whole state, including Bavaria.

Announcement of the appointment of Dr. Gessler was contained in the proclamation that a state of emergency existed in Germany. The proclamation suspended articles 114, 115, 117, 118, 123, 124 and 133 of the Weimar constitution.

It was pointed out that the Bavarian movement is not a dictatorship by the Hitlerites (Fascists). They are under control of Dictator Von Kahr and his associates.

Berlin was not surprised over the action of the Bavarians in proclaiming a dictatorship. Everything had been prepared for it and it was expected after the federal government decided to surrender unconditionally to France.

Counter measures had already been undertaken here and were in effect within half an hour after news of the Von Kahr dictatorship was received from Munich.

BAR ALL INDIANS

British Clubs Refuse to Admit Wealthy Natives.

Even a Millionaire Merchant or a Maharaja is Never Permitted to Enter Sacred Precincts.

I suddenly wondered if any Indian had ever been invited to the yacht club (Bombay). I knew, of course, that no Indian ever had; but my undefined and very casual thought was that the great Indian political offensive might have broken down at least some of the outer works of British social exclusiveness.

It has, too, as a matter of fact; but a Britisher would never picture his club as an outer works; he would think of it rather as an inner citadel. I recalled that I was somewhat shocked when I learned that no member of this club could invite an Indian into it for however brief an interval, or for any purpose whatsoever; and it made no difference what rank or plentiful lack of it the Indian might have either.

He might be a millionaire merchant or a maharaja, he might be a distinguished citizen prominent in any one of the learned professions; he might be a celebrated author or eminent scientist of some sort—India produces a considerable number of all such men; or he might be just an ordinary Indian gentleman.

Nevertheless he could not enter the sacred precincts of the Englishman's club. And it is said that this fact—a fact repeated all over India wherever there is an Englishman's club—and that which it denotes as being fundamental in the British character have done more to undermine the British imperial structure in India than all the alleged economic and political injustices combined.

To an Englishman, an Indian, no matter who he may be, is and always has been, not an Indian but a native; and though the high caste Indian resents being referred to as a native more bitterly than he resents anything else on earth, the average Englishman in India—with exceptions, to be sure—goes on thinking of Indians merely as natives, and referring to them as such not only in conversations in which Indians participate but in the press as well, and even in their more serious writings about India.—Eleanor Franklin Egan in the Saturday Evening Post.

General Sherman Showed Pique.

General Sherman, when making a tour of inspection of the military establishments of Europe, came to Constantinople and brought to the minister (George H. Boker, the noted playwright, 1871). Frederick Grant, just out of West Point, who came as an aid to General Sherman, and who was a very attractive young man of twenty-one. The sultan, hearing that the president's son was coming, conceived of the event as a visit from the crown prince of the United States, and he insisted upon considering General Sherman in the light of a caretaker to the young sovereign.

On one occasion the sultan was taking the air on the Bosphorus and his boat passed that of the visiting party. The sultan at that time never spoke to any one, but his gaze was in itself a salute, and he fixed that gaze unmistakably upon Lieutenant Grant.

When the boat passed, Grant turned impulsively to Sherman and cried out: "He spoke to me! I saw him!" Sherman was disgusted. "Yes, he did," he growled, "and I'd like to spank you!"—Scribner's Magazine.

Former Vice President Marshall on his return from Europe said to a New York reporter:

"Big men are little men. Lloyd George is little. Poincare is little. Our Whistler was little. Napoleon was little. Mark Twain, Jay Gould—but the list is endless.

"'Ho,' he said, 'a block off the old chip, eh?'"

What College Did for Him.

Educational sharps claim that college life makes a man more alert mentally. The proposition is that you don't go to college to absorb a mass of general information—you go there to learn to think.

A couple of magnates were having an argument about it. To end it, one of them sent to the outer office for a college graduate in his employ. They asked him to state frankly if college life had made him a quicker thinker.

"Yes," said he, without hesitation, "the two years I spent on second base did me a world of good."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Do You Like Good Coffee?"

If you do, you have a treat in store for you, and if ordinary coffee does not agree, you have still more reason to be interested in

PUL-VO-DRIP Barrington Hall

By the Baker process of roasting coffee to develop the flavor oils and cutting it to make these oils accessible without drawing out undesirable qualities, we can now offer Barrington Hall, full-flavored and delicious, at very little over the cost per cup of ordinary coffee.

WHY PUL-VO-DRIP

Coffee is grown in almost every tropical country. It is divided into two general classes, mild and rank. Either may be made strong or weak, as "mild" implies smoothness in taste, rather than weakness. There are degrees of mildness, hence different prices.

Low-grade coffee is low-priced because it is rank and however made, remains so, while good coffee becomes rank, if its flavor is cooked away and replaced by the woody taste of the grounds.

Pul-Vo-Drup Barrington Hall is not pulverized, as one might infer, but a new style cut, by our exclusive process, so that boiling water acts directly on the oil-cells, insuring instant and complete extraction of the pure coffee quality, without loss.

DIRECTIONS

To prepare PUL-VO-DRIP in an ordinary pot, simply pour boiling water over it, allow to settle two or three minutes, then pour or strain into another vessel preferably china. In a percolator, allow half the usual time. Quick infusion is the secret.

We have designed a coffee pot that does it all in one operation and does it right. For information and free offer ask your grocer or write to us.

BAKER IMPORTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

MOST SERIOUS, SAYS YOUNG EBERT

Fritz Ebert, Jr., son of President Ebert of Germany.

Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.

Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—The action of Bavaria in appointing a dictator is most serious. It is a storm signal. The crucial question today is: Will the Von Kahr government be compelled to evacuate in favor of the Von Kahr dictatorship?

Is it possible, (people are asking), whether Munich has merely let down the curtain behind which the Bavarian Fascists have been active for weeks? Behind this curtain they may have been preparing for bigger things than a mere display of strength.

At any rate, Bavaria sets the ball rolling. Germany is faced with her supreme test.

The test that faces Germany in the next few weeks is one between Republicanism and monarchy, with the Fascists arrayed on the side of the latter.

A redeeming feature of the situation is the fact that the Bavarian leaders are not united. All are pulling in different directions. Dr. Hitler and Von Kahr are chief and outstanding figures in the Bavarian movement. Hitler would be forced to assert his own power. It is possible he may succeed in enlisting a majority of the Bavarian people in the ranks of the Blackshirts.

If it should come to a test of armed strength, the Hitlerites should win, having the better organization.

The first phase would be a scramble for the dictatorship among the various leaders.

(Ebert) evidently refers to a political dictatorship, as his article was written after Minister of Defense Gessler has been appointed dictator by the Ebert government.

It is obvious that a cut throat struggle would take place among the political parties. This would give the responsible leaders in Bavaria and the balance of Germany time to make plans to save the nation before an armed clash could result.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. Mary Kerr Hoar, widow of Friend Hoar, Jr., died suddenly at the family residence, 55 Albany avenue, this morning. Mrs. Hoar was a woman of great intellectual attainments and widely interested in all charitable causes, being well known both at home and abroad through her generous support and substantial gifts to charitable organizations. She was very deeply interested in all charitable work and was a life-long member and faithful worker in St. John's Church of this city. The leper colony in Japan was one of the foreign charities in which she was deeply interested and some two years ago a meeting was held at her home in the interest of this worthy cause. Through her generous, cultured personality she made many friends to whom her sudden death came as a great shock. She was always interested in any work for the welfare of those who were in need and her work in the Red Cross and in other local charities was well known among those who were given assistance through the organization, as well as those who were co-workers with her. One brother, Charles Kerr, ex-mayor of Danbury, Conn., and three sisters, Miss Ida Kerr, who resided with her sister at the family home; Mrs. Ella DeWitt, wife of W. C. DeWitt, of this city, and Letitia, wife of Fred W. Warren, of this city, survive. Funeral services from St. John's Church, Monday, October 1, at 2:30 p. m.

TWO HURT WHEN TWO CARS MET

Striebel, His Child Treated at Hospital, Says Secor, Also Injured, Was on Wrong Side of Road.

Two automobiles came together Wednesday evening on the Ashokan boulevard some distance west of the Leavcraft Inn and an occupant of each car was treated at the Kingston City Hospital by Dr. E. E. Norwood.

J. H. Striebel, his wife and five year old son of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Secor and Mr. and Mrs. Knight, summer visitors, were driving from West Hurley toward Kingston. The car of William Secor of Ashokan was going west and it is claimed by Mr. Striebel that he turned his car toward the ditch to avoid the Secor car which he claims was well toward the left of the road. When near the Secor car Mr. Striebel became alarmed over the fact that his car was liable to upset in the ditch and turned sharply toward the Secor car, striking it. The Secor car was thrown to one side of the road and both cars were considerably damaged.

Mr. Secor and the Striebel child were both injured and they were rushed to the hospital where Dr. Norwood attended them. The boy had a severe laceration on his face and an injury to his leg. Mr. Secor sustained a cut on his head and bruises and a possible fracture of two ribs. Both left the hospital after having their injuries attended to.

received at Miss Hoyt's boarding school for young ladies, which was most thorough in all its branches and in which character building was so thoroughly impressed in all courses and subjects that its influence continued long after the school, and its precepts were forgotten. After her marriage to David Miller DeWitt, she resided for a short time in Brooklyn, while Mr. DeWitt was associated in the practice of law with his brother, the late Hon. William C. DeWitt, who drew the Greater New York charter, and afterwards was assistant district attorney of Kings county. For many years after their removal to Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt resided at the corner of Pearl street and Johnston avenue, in the house now occupied by George Burgevin, and it was while they were living there that Mr. DeWitt produced his world famous books, starting with "The Judicial Murder of Mary E. Surratt," which he later supplemented with "The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln" and "The Impeachment and Trial of Andrew Johnson," all of Mr. DeWitt's books dealing with the Reconstruction period of the United States, following the Civil War. It was while they lived there that Mr. DeWitt held the offices of assemblyman, district attorney, surrogate and congressman, and it was in all his successful endeavors that Mrs. DeWitt furnished the incentive. In later years, after Mr. DeWitt's death, Mrs. DeWitt graciously accepted the responsibilities imposed by the Nineteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, although she had not sought the right of votes for women. She was more keenly interested because of the political influence of her family, and the prominence which two sons attained, one son being Postmaster William C. DeWitt, formerly chairman of the Ulster county Democratic committee, and another son being MacDonald DeWitt, a well known lawyer of New York city, who is being recommended for the Republican and the Citizens' Union nomination for justice of the supreme court in the first department, comprising the Borough of Manhattan, this fall. Both the Hon. David M. DeWitt during his lifetime, and his sons since his death have been sporadic but important contributors to the columns of The Freeman, and their trait apparently inherited from their direct lineal ancestor, Col. Charles DeWitt, who after grinding the grist which fed Washington's army at Valley Forge, became, at the close of the Revolutionary War, the owner, editor and proprietor of one of Kingston's early newspapers. Of five children, Mrs. DeWitt is survived by three. Charles DeWitt of College Point, Long Island; Postmaster William C. DeWitt of this city and MacDonald DeWitt of New York city. The sons who died were Richard, who for several years was teller of the National Ulster County Bank, and David M. DeWitt, Jr. Mrs. DeWitt was the last surviving member of her family, which numbered among its members many distinguished men and women of whom none can be modest in regard to their capabilities, their ambition or their death is said. A tribute to her life, she never would have stood sponsor; while she delighted in other people's virtues and accomplishments, she was modest to a marked degree of those of her own. Funeral from her late residence, No. 183 Pearl street, on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

MRS. WARD GETS LETTERS FROM ALL OVER COUNTRY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Courthouse, White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 27.—In the two weeks of the trial of Walter S. Ward here, his wife Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, has received more than 2,300 letters from all parts of the country. "Almost without exception they are from people I don't know, people who express their sympathy for me and their belief in Walter's innocence," Mrs. Ward said this morning as she opened some sixty letters which were awaiting her in the clerk's office here. "There are some, of course, which condemn. They are unsigned," she said. "Some day I am going to answer every one, as soon as I feel strong enough."

KINGSTON, N. Y. SEPT. 27, 1923

GREAT LANDED ESTATES

There is a story of an American woman who was horrified at the spectacle of great tracts of land in England held by single individuals, and who on one occasion roundly rebuked a peer of the realm for his selfishness in keeping a promiscuous public out of an estate the walls or fences of which formed a circumference of thirty miles. The same woman could have come home and viewed in the light of her professional Americanism a North Carolina estate not merely thirty miles around but thirty miles across. She would have found the Vanderbilt estate of "Biltmore" to contain 100,000 acres, including the whole of Mt. Pisgah, miles and miles of the Swannanoa and French Broad rivers and a mansion rivaling the palaces of Europe, three miles from the lodge and approached by macadam roads through a great park. She could have found that this great American estate, like the smaller and older ones in England, was open to scholars only at stated times, and that its game preserves and trout streams were likewise reserved for the pleasure of the owner and his guests.

Now that the wealthiest of British noblemen are selling off large sections of their estates in order to pay heavy taxes, the conclusion is inevitable that in the future the landed estates of England will be very small affairs compared with those in America, for the North Carolina domain referred to above is but one of many and a promise of more to come in different parts of the United States.

A man of great wealth has as much right to privacy on his own domain as the poorest laborer, and under our system he is at liberty to buy and fence in as large tracts of land as he can afford or may be pleased to own. Only the socialistic reformers say nay and would institute a different system. But that is another question. At present the more or less "professional" American needs to be reminded that what we have so long criticized in Europe we already have in America and are likely to have to a far greater extent as time goes on.

Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor says that food is being skipped in order that gasoline may be purchased, but those who prefer jay-ridding to a full stomach can at least retort that some doctors say people eat too much anyhow.

The publisher of "five-cent classics" announces that his most called for book is "The Trial of Socrates" by Plato, a million and a half copies having been sold in a short time. Perhaps a part of the explanation is that many of the purchasers thought it was a modern detective story.

Plasterers are getting $119 a week in Evanston, Ill., and in Waukegan of the same state owing to a slight rivalry between contractors employers are getting $146 a week. In consequence college faculties and other guilds are being depleted—or at least the story that comes over the wires.

The story of a million Communists in the United States, bound by some oaths and working in stealth to bring about revolution, including the overthrow of Government and all the vested rights for which it stands seems to attract more attention than previous ones of a like sort because this time the warning comes from the quarters of a labor organization.

At a recent luncheon in New York in the interests of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation two speakers contrasted "the ignorance of American-born children of the early history of the United States with the knowledge of American heroes possessed by foreign children." Is this another instance of the indifference of the insiders and the eager interest of the ambitious climbers?

A jitney driver in Camden, N. J., excited suspicion when, in starting contrast with the average reckless driver, he was seen to be moving slowly and choosing his course with great care. When stopped and searched by the police, his car was found to contain a 5-gallon glass jug of moonshine. Moral: Keep well within the two extremes when driving a car if you don't want to get pinched.

In reply to protest against his expulsion of 2,000 negroes from his city the Mayor of Johnstown, Pa., says he wishes some of the kickers were there "to go into the holes of vice set up in this city and near it by imported negroes," adding that "the negroes responsible for it must leave" and "if the rest of them don't get out soon I'll aim the police and wads, then out of town at the point of a gun." Why the Mayor is determined to banish all negroes instead of merely those "responsible for it" the dispatch fails to explain.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Is it really healthier to have plants and trees around? Why?

Vegetation is necessary to keep the air from getting overloaded with carbon dioxide, constantly poured from lungs of all air-breathing creatures, and caused by combustion. Vegetation needs this gas to make its own food and continually eats it up. In a recent text book by Ganong, a vivid estimate is given showing that to clean up the carbon dioxide produced in one year by one man, the work of 150 square meters, or about 1,614 1/2 square feet of leaf surface is needed. Every one of us ought to plant at least a bush yearly, to make sure we are helping clean up the poison we produce with every breath.

2. Do coyotes have more than one litter a year?

No, coyotes, also wolves and foxes, breed but once a year. Coyotes have 4 to 8 or more to a litter, born the latter part of March or into April in rather retired dens, among rocks or often along stream banks, where they stay hid for some eight weeks or so. By August they can forage for themselves and the family breaks up.

3. Did you ever hear of anyone losing pigeons from the attacks of screech owls?

In winter time, if food is scarce, and it is foraging in a barn where domestic doves are kept, it will eat them. Most of its food is mice, however, and a screech owl is a useful neighbor at all seasons.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

LEGION MAN OF MANY TASKS

Howard S. Fisk, Historian of District of Columbia, Has Had Many Interesting Experiences.

Howard S. Fisk, now historian of the American Legion in the District of Columbia, was considered during the war as one of the most resourceful of executives on account of his expert knowledge concerning automobile transportation.

Fisk was born in New York City and, on removal to Washington, became a newsboy. From this lowly station he arose through various departments of a city daily until he became automobile editor of the newspaper. As a result of his work in this connection he became familiar with all phases of automobile transportation, and has edited several books on this subject.

He was identified with the District of Columbia Naval Militia during the Spanish-American war, and was pay clerk on board the U. S. S. Fern, the first ship to enter Havana harbor after the Maine was blown up. In 1917 he volunteered his services to the navy and during the war was stationed in Washington as a staff member of Admiral McCaw's staff. When the outbreak of influenza swept the city in 1918, Fisk was detached from active duty and was placed in charge of a transport corps, which conveyed patients, physicians and nurses throughout the city during the epidemic. The District of Columbia was under direct tion of Surgeon General Rupert C. Blue, who sought Fisk's assignment to this particular duty. During the period when the ravages of the disease were most violent, Fisk worked 19 hours daily for nearly three weeks. He was cited for this service, and when discharged from the navy was a lieutenant commander.

When post 1 of the American Legion was organizing, temporarily to be known as Gen. John J. Pershing post, Fisk was one of the petitioners for the organization. He was named first department adjutant, elected vice commander and commander of George Washington post No. 1, and represented the national organization at a reception for Marshal Foch at the White House, when he formally pinned a badge of the American Legion on the breast of the French leader. He is said to be the only Legionnaire in the District who has been selected as delegate or alternate to every national convention of the Legion.

IN HONOR OF AMERICAN DEAD

Battle Monuments Commission Named by President Harding to Supervise Erection.

The American battle monuments commission, authorized by the Sixty-seventh congress, and some time ago named by President Harding to supervise the erection of all monuments erected in honor of the American troops, will decide on definite plans for these monuments, so that any memorials to companies, regiments, divisions or units will be in keeping with the plans of the commission.

Col. Thomas W. Miller, who represents the American Legion on this commission as named by President Harding, served in the Twenty-ninth and Seventy-ninth divisions, as division adjutant of the latter organization. Colonel Miller is national executive committee member of the Legion from the department of Delaware and has taken an active part in Legion affairs.

Col. D. John Markey of Frederick, Md., who in 1922 was chairman of the American Legion's national committee on military affairs, is another active Legionnaire named on the commission. Other members of the commission are Gen. John J. Pershing, Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, Congressman John Phillip Hill of Maryland, Capt. Robert G. Woodside of Pennsylvania, Maj. X. H. Price, as secretary, all of whom are overseas veterans. Mrs. Fred W. Bentley of Illinois is the other member of the commission, and represents "gold star" mothers.

TOAST TO WORLD'S LAST WAR

Bottle of Ancient Wine to Be Passed On, to Be Drunk When Strife Ends.

When the world fights its last war, some veteran of an American war may drink a bottle of wine preserved for years for the coming of such an event.

The wine recently occupied the place of honor on the banquet table of the Last Man club, formed from the survivors of Company B, First Minnesota Volunteers, a Civil war organization. The club was formed thirty years ago, with 34 members. There was an understanding that a reunion should be held each year. The wine was presented to the club on its organization, and it was agreed that the last survivor should attend the banquet, and drink the rare old vintage to the vacant chairs of his departed comrades.

This year only three were present at the meeting, which was held in Stillwater, Minn., on the anniversary of the battle of Bull Run. Peter Hall, president of the club, declared during the meeting that the requirements of the constitution would make the last occasion too sorrowful, and suggested another way to mark the passing of the organization. He offered a plan that the last two survivors should drink a toast, seal the remainder of the wine in the bottle, and pass it on to the American Legion in Stillwater, with similar stipulation as to its retention, or until all nations join to make war impossible. Thus, the Stillwater Legion men are expected to become possessors of the wine, perhaps to be passed on to some other veterans' organization founded from another American war.

Peter Hall, Atwater, Minn.; John Gott, a guest at the Minneapolis Soldiers' home; and Charles Lockwood, Chamberlain, S. D., were the guests at this year's meeting. One other survivor, Emil Graft, of St. Cloud, Fla., was kept from the meeting because of physical infirmities.

The unique event attracted national attention, and the proposal to pass on the rare wine to the American Legion, not to be touched until war has become impossible, has resulted in considerable speculation as to whether the World War veterans would drink the final toast.

ISSUES 'HOME LOAN' WARNING

Legion Officials Caution Oregon Veterans Against Assuming Too Heavy Financial Burdens.

Unscrupulous dealers in real estate are said to have taken advantage of former service men in the state of Oregon, which by law has provided for a "home loan" feature of compensation for veterans. Officials of the American Legion, to whom have been reported a number of instances in which the veteran has faced loss of his investment, have issued a communication to members of that organization, warning them against assuming too heavy a financial burden under the plan.

The law, as passed by the state legislature, was intended by its sponsors to finance the purchase of homes or farms for veterans, when they have sufficient income to carry the payments.

According to the Legion leaders, certain real estate men are showing a tendency to depreciate or discount the loan of the veteran, or to demand additional cash down. Some firms have claimed that the plan outlined by the law was not feasible to handle, and that the business was conducted at a loss.

There have been 400 bonus loans in Oregon to date, according to the records of the state officials. Of this number, only seven veterans face foreclosure on property, a refutation of the statement that realty dealers had found the plan unsuccessful.

The principal difficulty has been, Legion investigators say, to keep the veterans from paying too much for homes or farms. Payments on property selling at $5,000 or more are heavy, and veterans are urged to consider the fact that in case they have put a second mortgage on their place to a realty dealer, they must pay the state a certain sum in addition to that due the real estate man.

SUPPORT OF LEGION ASSURED

Religious and Fraternal Organizations Pledge Aid to Work of World War Men.

Unanimous support by numerous religious and fraternal organizations of the American Legion was pledged at a recent meeting of these groups held in Washington. A resolution adopted at the gathering quoted the preamble to the Legion's constitution, and then continued:

"We heartily approve this statement and the American Legion as a great organization composed of men and women who served their country in the World War, earnestly hoping that they will continue to serve their country in time of peace with the same patriotic devotion that animated them in the days when they wore the uniform. We pledge them our cordial support, wishing them all success and every blessing as they pursue these high ideals."

Organizations joining in the tribute were the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Young Men's Christian association, American Red Cross and National Catholic Welfare Council.

PIG'S POETRY

"We might as well make the best of it," said Miss Ham. "Squeal, squeal, we might as well make the best of it."

"What should we make the best of?" asked Grandfather Porky Pig. "Tell us, Miss Ham, grunt, grunt, tell us, Cousin Ham."

"Yes, tell us, squeal, squeal, tell us, Miss Ham," said Brother Bacon. "Grunt, grunt, tell us, Miss Ham," urged Sammy Sausage.

"Please tell us," said Sir Percival Pork. "Grunt, grunt, please tell us, Miss Ham."

"Yes, squeal, squeal, please tell us, Miss Ham," said Sir Benjamin Bacon. "We want to know, grunt, grunt, we want to know," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Yes, and you must tell us, squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pinky Pig.

"You surely must, grunt, grunt," said Pinky Pig's mother, and Pinky Pig said:

"Squeal, squeal, we want to know." "Well, grunt, grunt," said Miss Ham, "you don't give me a chance to tell you. You grunt and squeal and won't give me a moment in which to tell you anything."

"Squeal, squeal," said Brother Bacon, "we will give you all the moments you want, if you will only not ask us for food. I do not mind, however, if you ask the others for food, but do not ask it of me."

"Ask me for moments if you will and I will give you all the moments you want."

"How absurd you are," said Grandfather Porky Pig. "Why, I would not even bother to say that I didn't want to be asked for food."

"She could ask me if she wished. That wouldn't mean that I'd have to give it to her."

"That wouldn't mean anything of the sort."

"Oh, yes, I understand," said Miss Ham. "But I must tell you what we've got to make the best of and that is that we've finished dinner and can't find anything in the Pig Pen, so that it looks as though we'd not have anything more to eat until supper time."

"That's no news to us," said Grandfather Porky, "and to think that you got us so excited about such a horrible thing that was not worth getting excited about."

"Grandfather Porky is right," the other pigs grunted. "Grandfather Porky is right."

"Oh, very well," said Miss Ham. "But I was going to suggest that as long as we couldn't eat and had to make the best of it we might make up some poetry."

"What?" grunted all the pigs in amazement.

"Yes," said Miss Ham. "Pigs poetry would be lively, I'm sure, and it could go down to fame."

"We don't know about it going down to fame," said Sammy Sausage, "but it would doubtless go down into the mud along with our snouts."

"Well," said Miss Ham, "as you're all so foolish, I will show that I am superior and I will make up a poem. Here it is:

"I'm a pig,
I don't dance the jig,
I am not so neat,
But I do love to eat,
And food I will greet,
And consider it sweet.
"I Am Superior."

"Queer sort of poetry," grunted Brother Bacon, "but it only goes to show that pigs' poetry cannot amount to much, so there isn't any use in trying to make poems."

"Correct," squealed the other pigs. "Correct."

"Parking Space Needed."

Fred was five years old, and his mother was making him some new suits.

"I wish you'd make me some regular pants, that aren't hooked onto the shirt, and that have pockets and everything," Fred complained.

"But you're too little for that kind of pants yet," his mother protested. "And, anyway, you don't need any pockets. What would you do with pockets if you had them?"

"Well," he replied, "I think I'm just naturally getting big enough to have a place to park my hands."

"And those Centipedes."

"How old is your little brother, Johnny?" inquired Willie.

"Just a year old," replied Johnny.

"Hub, I've got a dog just a year old, and he can walk twice as well as your brother."

"He ought to; he's got twice as many legs."

"Serbians Are Dry."

The movement for prohibition is strong among the students of Serbia, and a number of demonstrations in favor of abstinence from alcoholic liquors are planned. It is estimated that 80 per cent of Serbian students are total abstainers.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS

When looking for a dessert in the family that likes pie try:

Nut, Cream Prune Pie.—Put through a sieve one cupful of stewed prunes; add a cupful of rich milk, one tablespoonful of flour, a third of a cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, and the whites beaten stiff and added just at the last. Sprinkle a cupful of chopped black walnut meats over the top and bake as usual. Use a pastry-lined plate and bake at first in a hot oven, then lower the heat to bake the custard.

Mashed Potatoes With Peanut Butter.—Boil, mash and beat until light, six medium-sized potatoes; add salt, one tablespoonful of butter and one-half cupful of hot milk. Heap in a hot dish. Blend one and one-half tablespoonfuls of peanut butter with one tablespoonful of butter, add a few dashes of red pepper and dot the hot potato with bits of the butter.

Planked Fish.—Split the fish, wipe with a damp cloth and lay skin-side down on the well-heated plank, which has been rubbed with sweet fat. Sprinkle the fish with seasonings and dot with bits of butter if it is a fish lacking fat. Place in the oven under the broiler flame for fifteen minutes. Meanwhile have potatoes boiled, rice and seasonings, and add milk to moisten; add an egg yolk, mix well and fold in a beaten white. Arrange the mashed potato around the fish in mounds, or force through a pastry tube. Brown quickly under the broiler flame. Garnish the fish with slices of cucumber which have been marinated in French dressing, and small tomatoes cut into the form of a lily. Place whorls of mayonnaise in the center of each tomato.

Cabbage Salad.—Chop cabbage, add a cupful of chopped celery to three cupfuls of cabbage, and three diced bananas. Season well and cover with any desired well-seasoned dressing. Serve in a cabbage bowl made by scooping out the cabbage from a good firm head. Garnish with fringed celery and some of the thick mayonnaise.

WHAT ABOUT CASTOR OIL?

Perhaps if I were to look around a bit, I might find a more popular thing to talk about.

And yet what about it?

Well, as a matter of fact this is one of the things handed down from great great grandmothers to great great grandchildren that has survived all the new preparations known to the profession.

And why?

Simply because it does its work completely, without much fuss, and is so easily available.

And what does it do?

After passing down the throat (a bit nasty I'll admit) it passes through the stomach unchanged and immediately gets busy with the job on hand.

That job can be the removal of a poison of some kind, an overloaded intestine, a summer diarrhoea, constipation after an operation, anything in fact, and the castor oil will clear matters up.

On entering the intestine it breaks up into an acid which stimulates activity of both the muscular and secretory coats of the intestine, and they drive anything and everything along the intestine and out of the body.

And the nice thing about it is that it is so safe. A youngster can take a teaspoonful and an adult a table spoonful and no harm is done to the body. In fact the very oiliness is somewhat soothing to the intestine. It is hard to get youngsters to take it, but a peppermint before and after takes away considerable of the taste.

For grown children and adults capsules are now obtainable and are very easily taken.

In an emergency then castor oil is a splendid thing, but should never be used regularly for constipation.

HAD TRAMP CHAIR

Maine Used Odd Contrivance to Rout Hoboes.

Large Iron Cage for Wanderers Suspected Newspaper's Exposure of Unique Craft System.

Out in a dump pile in the outskirts of Rockport, Me., is the wreck of one of the "tramp" chairs which attained fame in Maine something like twenty-five years ago. This chair was expected to put an end to the tramp evil—for the tramp had become an evil in the state at that time—but like so many other things of which wonderful reforms are expected, it failed. However, before its failure became definitely established, many Maine towns purchased one of the chairs, and today there are in many junk piles of the state specimens of the chair in varied states of preservation.

This chair was nothing more or less than a cage of strap iron built in crude imitation of a chair. The front would swing open so that the hobo sentenced to do his bit in the contraption could step in and sit down. It was then swung back and locked. There was very little opportunity for moving, so that the thing was actually a machine to torture rather than punishment. A shelf on the front served as a table from which the tramp inside could eat. The chair was mounted on wheels so that it could be moved about.

What brought this chair into existence, undoubtedly, was the exposure by the Boston Globe of a system of graft in vogue in York county and some other sections of the state by making use of the Maine tramp laws.

The plan was a combination between certain trial justices, deputy sheriffs and constables to keep the justices busy trying tramp cases and the jail full of the wayfarers. These trial justices got a fee from the state for every case they heard, the officer received a fee for the arrest and transportation of the prisoners and the sheriff got so much a day for each prisoner he had in the jail. In order to make the scheme work they had to have a sufficient number of tramps, and this was what in the end led to its exposure. These men didn't try to hog all the money. In order to be sure of a sufficient supply of raw material in the person of tramps they paid the tramps a percentage of the amount of fees received. This kept the raw material interested.

Short sentences were given in all cases. Ten days in the jail was a long time. Usually it was not more than six. The sheriff did not work them hard, fed them well, and they were always sure of a good bed and a warm place to stay in cold weather. When a tramp was released from the jail he was given directions what town to visit next. In this way the frequency of men being sentenced to jail took on a semblance of reasonableness so that no one got wise to the arrangement until the story was told in the Globe. Virgil Eaton, a native of Maine, was at that time one of the star reporters on the Globe. He heard of the system and came down to Maine to investigate. He disguised himself as a tramp, got arrested and sentenced to jail; also he became one of the members of the graft ring as a part of the raw material supply, so that when his story was printed it was correct to the minutest details of the methods of working the scheme.

Naturally, this put an end to the tramp industry, but it didn't relieve Maine of the tramp problem.

The state was fairly swarming with tramps. When the tramp industry "blew" their soft snap was ended in all sections of the state. Officers and justices dare not be lenient on tramps and in the effort to drive them from the state this tramp chair was devised.

In the "Good Old Days."

It was in the early days of sleeping cars, when they measured the sheets by square inches and weighed the blankets on letter-scales.

It was also a suffering passenger who, tossing and jolting through the dark and chilly night, wondered whether, by error, he was sleeping between towels and would possibly find the sheets hanging over the towel-horse next morning.

"Porter," he cried, as the train gave a particularly vicious jolt, and dragged his last sheet of bed-clothing aside, "bring me a corkscrew."

The porter came hurrying. "Sorry sir," he said respectfully, "but we don't allow drinking in the berths."

"I don't want to drink," retorted the suffering passenger. "I merely want to extract a pillow that has worked its way into my ear."

After Thinking Twice.

Father was standing before the fire lecturing his son and heir on the necessity for thinking twice before speaking once.

"Father!" exclaimed the boy suddenly.

The parent held up a warning finger. "Think again before you speak and then I will answer you."

The boy pondered for a minute or so and then said: "Father, I have thought twice and now I am quite convinced that your coat tails are on fire."—Boston Herald.

"And I am five years old today, too," said Dorothy.—Boston Transcript.

Force Babies to Eat Mush.

FEW HINTS FOR HUSBANDS

'Advice on How to Make One's Wife Perfectly Happy All Through Married Life.

"The secret of success in married life," says a paper, "is to reveal some new trait in your character from time to time."

You see the idea? Don't be all your self all at once. Spring little surprises on your wife from time to time and spread them over at least fifteen years; that is, if your wife is still alive.

Do not rush matters; wait until things begin to humdrum. Then is the time to reveal the new traits.

For six months—spin it out to a year if you can—make happy little quotations from standard authors. Your wife will be delighted to see how well you read you are. Buck her up a bit. Wives must be cheered up; after all, she's your wife—she needs it.

When the quotation era falls try something else. Buy a piccolo and a book on how to play it. Learn to play it in your office or on the omnibus.

Then one night, putting your hand in your breast pocket, say, "I've got a little surprise for you, dear." She will think you are only going to give her a diamond necklace, and to her great surprise you will pull out your piccolo and play a little tune.

Do not take any notice of the expression on your wife's face—remember, you have taken her by surprise. Play another tune another day in your study with the door closed and a blanket over the piccolo. Whatever happens, it will be a new trait.

In the meantime you can be secretly perfecting yourself in various conjuring tricks. Practice out in the country with a pack of cards, some rabbits, and a top hat.

Then one evening you will be able to say, "I'll show you a little trick, my dear." Lead the conversation up to cards first. "In memoriam" cards are a good start. Make your wife take a card and look at it. Tell her to put it in the pack again. Then ask her how many spots it has. When she says she has forgotten, do not show any chagrin; you can change it into a rabbit.

If your wife is ill, relieve her tedium by reciting poetry to her. If the servants are ill, too, see to your wife's breakfast yourself. Bring it to her bedroom cheerily. If her affection wanes, say, "Carissima mia" tenderly one morning. Show her you are a scholar.

Start a beehive next to the window flowers; learn the Treaty of Versailles by heart and explain the reparations problem to her.

The possibilities are endless. Re-verse—ever changing—and at the end of the tenth year, if she has not already got a divorce—well, she ought to, that's all—London Mail.

Art of Making Batik.

The two most striking industries of Java are the making of batik and the making of the kris. Every true Javanese that can afford it wears batik head-and-body kain and carries a kris (a weapon with a blade about a foot long) in his belt. Djorka is the center of the batik industry, and the majority of its women are adepts in the production of this artistic fabric.

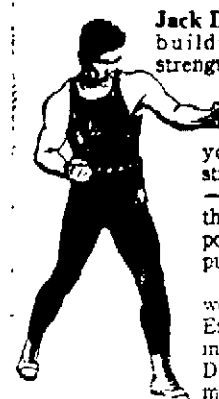

Batik is cotton cloth on which designs have been printed in a special way. Melted white wax is allowed to trickle from the small end of a funnel upon those portions of the fabric that it is not desired to color, the operation being exactly duplicated on the two sides. This done, the cloth is dipped in the dye vat, withdrawn and hung up to dry, and the wax removed later with the use of boiling water. This series of operations is repeated in the application of each color, till the entire design is transferred.

Certain designs may be worn only by royalty, others by priests, and so on. The designs are of every conceivable description, from conventional flowers and geometrical figures, to jungle scenes and quaint representations of wild beasts.—Detroit News.

Best Talker of Birddom.

Among birds that have the power of imitation the parrot is supposed to talk the best; but, as a matter of fact, its voice is decidedly inferior to that of the mynah, a species of starling, of England. Curiously enough, the cock bird speaks in a high, clear tone like that of a child, while the hen has a gruff voice.

Jack Dempsey Says Newer Form of Iron Increases Strength

Jack Dempsey says: "In building up rugged strength, power and endurance there is nothing like filling your blood with strength-giving iron. I firmly believe that it puts added power behind my punch."

Dr. Emil Sauer, well known New England Physician, in commenting on Dempsey's statement, says: "No man can win without plenty of good red blood rich in health-giving and strength-building iron can go through life filled with vigor, force and power."

"Every thinking person should realize if men as physically fit as Jack Dempsey, Jack Wheat, Harry Hooper and dozens of other leaders in the world of sport have helped to maintain their supremacy by the use of this newer form of iron which is called Nuxated Iron, how much more important it is for the average man to see that there is no lack of iron in his blood. A surprisingly large number of people suffer from iron deficiency. Without iron in the blood, you cannot be your best, either mentally or physically, because lack of iron not only makes you nervous, irritable, and easily fatigued, but robs you of that vital force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every serious life. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which has found so valuable as Nuxated Iron. Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks, and if you have not, like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the Nuxated Iron will promptly refund your money. Nuxated Iron is sold with this 'satisfaction or money back' guarantee by all good druggists."

U. S. CONSUL AND BRIDE HAVE HOME ON WHEELS

'American Newlyweds Like Their Box-Car Dwelling While Traveling in Turkey.

The only American representative in a far-off corner of Asia is a young Marylander, Charles Imbrie, of Baltimore. His duties include that of consul, trade commissioner, and counselor to thousands of non-Muslims who are not popular in Turkey at the moment, and who believe any American can perform miracles for them.

Mr. Imbrie had been living a hand-to-mouth existence in the poverty-stricken city for more than a year, but when he married Miss Katherine Gillespie of New York, director of the Near East Relief Orphanage, recently, he thought it would be well to go home hunting.

Angora, however, has what probably is the most acute housing shortage of any city in the world, hence the young couple decided to set up housekeeping in the only box car to let in town, and now the American flag waves from its sliding door.

Although a bit cramped for room, especially when company calls, the American home on wheels is the cleanest place in Angora. It stands on a railway siding and is always ready to be coupled to a train for one of Mr. Imbrie's trips of inspection to outlying parts of Turkey. During these journeys Mrs. Imbrie carries on her housework as usual. In fact she finds a certain advantage in being able to take her house with her in her travels with her husband, and says that she will miss it when she returns to western civilization.

Japanese Women's Pillows.

The cedar-wood pillows found in the tomb of old King Tut-Ankh-Amen, in Egypt, exactly resemble the wooden pillows in use today in Japan. It must be difficult to find any sleep-inducing virtue in these so-called cushions, and one must be much determined to sleep to be able to do so under the conditions. The reason for the hard substance of these pillows is explained by the imperative necessity of not disturbing the complicated head-dress of the Japanese women. Only the women of the middle class still use these hard pillows, as they do their hair only once a month and cannot bear to see it untidy between times.

Black Organdis.

Black organdis is seen infrequently enough to have the charm of novelty when it does appear. Frequently it is combined with silver cloth or a colorful lining, and brightened up with gay embroidery.

DEFLATION HAS HELPED FARMER

By Spurring Him to Devise Own Marketing Methods, Says Speaker at Bankers' Convention.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, Sept. 27.—The present era of the deflation in the agricultural districts will be the salvation of the American farmer because it has taught him to devise his own marketing methods. Carl Williams, of Oklahoma City, president of the American Cotton Growers' Exchange, said yesterday in a speech before the state bank division of the American Bankers' Association, in annual convention here.

"The farmers have realized," Mr. Williams added, "that there can be no political remedy for an economic evil and that they themselves are responsible for their own destiny and that the reason they have failed to become prosperous is because they have failed to recognize the economic principles of city business in their own marketing operations."

"The farmer had assumed that because production is an individual problem marketing must also be. He now has learned, however, that the group principle may be applied to the marketing of farm crops just as readily as it is to the marketing of shoes or steel rails. He has learned that there are two factors in supply and demand. One is time and the other is place. The actual price of the product depends in a large degree on its time of sale and on whether the sale is at the point of production or at the point of consumption."

"With this fundamental understanding the farmer began to see how to solve his own problem. Out of that new knowledge has come a movement that already has become the most important development in the agricultural history of this country and so far-reaching in its effects that it touches directly or indirectly the pocketbooks of the entire nation. It is a movement which today engages the attention of one-sixth of the farmers of the United States and through which more than one-tenth of all the crops—as measured by dollar value—are marketed."

"More than 30 per cent of the dried fruits, 75 per cent of the citrus fruits, 70 per cent of the tobacco, 65 per cent of the nuts, 25 per cent of the milk and milk products and 20 per cent of the cotton grown in the United States are being marketed today by cooperative associations of our standard type, by a standard method and for a standard purpose. There are 1,200,000 farmers who belong to these commodity organizations. They have learned that their success lies through the substitution of the principle of merchandising for that of dumping."

"The world's consumption of American crops is approximately in even ratio month by month. The monthly usage of cotton, for example, varies from 7.9 per cent in November to 6.9 per cent in March, consumption of every other month being between those figures. Yet 70 per cent of the crop is dumped by farmers during the months of September, October, November and December. About 65 per cent of the wheat is marketed in August, September, October and November. This dumping process floods the market with an excess supply and lends its aid to speculative manipulation. It results in a situation wherein every farmer competes with every other farmer for soil and where, under the pressure of debt at the bank and the need for food for the family and feed for the teams, the necessities of the weakest make the price for all."

"No individual farmer can remedy this situation. Collectively, farmers have learned that their power to avoid the evils of dumping is limitless and that their ability intelligently to merchandise their crops is just as great as the ability of any city group to merchandise its product. Cooperating farmers have substituted merchandising for dumping. Which means simply that they control the movement of farm crops so that the crops go into the markets of the world at such times and in such quantities that they are fully absorbed at prices that are fair under given commercial conditions."

"This is the one fundamental aim of the modern cooperative marketing association. The aim is not artificial fixation of price on an artificial basis. The aim is purely to apply to the great industry of agriculture those principles of business which have been approved in every other type of manufacturing, production and distribution and which are in universal use in the best and largest corporations of practically every country."

"We have found that in order intelligently to merchandise a product, we must organize on the basis of the commodity itself. No man can intelligently sell his product unless he knows how much there is of that product, where the buyers are and what the approximate demand is. Neither can any co-operative marketing association compete with private individuals in the same line unless it has control of sufficient volume of the total product to insure a ready sale in any quantity to standardize its product, to which any market in the world and the various types of business intelligence which prevail in ordinary industrial corporations without the creation of an excess overhead against the products itself."

"Expert management is vital to their success. These modern commodity organizations have found that they can go into the open markets and hire experts to work for them instead of against them, paying these experts just as high salaries as they get in private business and considering that the money so paid is the best investment ever made by the farmers."

"These two principles—that of organizing by commodity and the employment of experts—are the two fundamentals on which modern commodity marketing stands. The other three are: Growers only as members, so that there will be no divided interest; an iron-clad contract under which members must deliver all their product for a term of years, so the association may have an assurance of a specific volume of business; an internal pooling arrangement whereby every member gets the same price for the same quality and grade of product, regardless of the time of delivery or of sale. Seven supreme courts have upheld the legality of these principles and they are specifically authorized by the statutes of twenty-nine states."

"There are more than 200,000 members of the cotton associations in the south. Every member who marketed his crop last year through a cotton association received at least $20 a bale, or an average of $200 a farm family, more than the non-member got for the same grade and quality of cotton. This means a minimum of $40,000,000 of excess original buying power in the cotton south, to say nothing of the increased prices afforded all farmers as a result of the influence of the cotton associations on the general market."

"Here we have the specific cause for a known effect, which is that except for California and Kentucky, both methods of cooperative marketing, the cotton south has been this year the most prosperous agricultural section of the United States. Here again is a lesson for the future. If American prosperity is to be restored to a permanently stable basis, the purchasing ratio of farm crops must come up or commodity prices must go down. Those who appreciate the fact that in the sum total of raw and finished products labor furnishes approximately 80 per cent of the total cost, and who see evident difficulties in the war of reducing the price of labor, are a unit in the belief that the solution of this phase of the agricultural problem depends upon raising the farm price level to the commodity level."

LEGION TO FIGHT
HUGE AIR FORCE

Delegates to Brussels Meet Seek to Curb Planes.

ACT TO SAVE U. S. BILLIONS

Allied veterans of the World war may bring about the holding of an international air conference to limit military aircraft armament and end the present race for superiority in progress among the nations of Europe.

Alarmed at the air preparations being made by France, England, Italy and Russia, the American Legion delegates to the International Veterans' federation convention in Brussels will wage a determined fight to induce delegates from all countries to participate in an international meeting to reduce air armaments.

The Legion charges that France, by embarking upon the most stupendous air program in the history of the world, has started a mad conflict for mastery of the air from a military standpoint which threatens to disturb world peace. Leaders of the veterans' organization have determined to make all efforts to curb this demonstration of militarism on the part of their former allies.

To Ask Air Disarmament Meet.

To this end the Legion will ask President Coolidge to call an air disarmament conference in Washington, similar to the conference on naval limitation held in 1921.

There is no exaggeration in regard to the seriousness of the situation, according to the Legion leaders, who point out that France has 140 squadrons of military flying machines and intends to have 220 squadrons by 1925. Included in the armament, they state, are planes which carry 75-millimeter cannon, others that can transport six machine guns and their crews, enormous bombers, special fighting ships armored with battleship steel and actual troopships of the air. England, which has voted an extra $27,500,000 to enlarge its air armada, is France's nearest competitor, it is stated, while Russia plans a force of 10,000 planes and Italy has created a separate air service with plans for extensive expansion.

Acts to Save U. S. Billions.

It is the Legion's desire to hold the conference before it becomes necessary for the United States to appropriate billions of dollars for construction of military aircraft to cope with the situation created by the activities of foreign powers.

Alvin Owsley, national commander of the Legion, just before sailing for Europe to attend the veterans' conference, expressed the situation as follows:

"The conference on naval limitation at Washington in 1921 went a long way to persuade the world's mind toward peace upon the waters. Land forces, too, are fast being reduced. It is only in the air that danger threatens. France has equipped herself with an air fleet which is equal in power to the combined air forces of the rest of the world. The French minister of war declared his country is tired of being a battlefield and is preparing, should war come again, to carry the battle immediately into the enemy's country.

Britain Becomes Alarmed.

"At this the British across the channel have taken alarm. A former cabinet minister declares that France with her tremendous air forces could destroy London tomorrow. So the British vote additional millions of pounds and set out to build as great an air force as France has. Premier Baldwin says England must be prepared against attack by the strongest air force within striking distance. It is France against whom England thus prepares. The British admit it.

"Along comes Italy, and after signing the Washington naval treaty and greatly diminishing her land force and announces the establishment of a separate air force and votes large credits to expand it as soon as possible into an effective war force.

"By these means is the peace of mind of Europe disturbed and the peace of the world threatened. The allied partnership, which should be preserved intact to deal with the great problems of the hour, which is as necessary to civilization, now is strained and endangered. The American Legion feels there is a way out. Let this mad race for supremacy in the air be ended as the mad race for supremacy on the seas was ended. It is foolhardy to contend that it cannot be done."

MARSH FILLED WITH DUCKS

Thousands of Water Fowls Make Their Home in Hay Bottom.

In the wide arched marsh of Crook and Creek valley, three miles east of Meade, Kan., thousands of wild water fowls are making their home. In many places the ducklings are so numerous that one can scarcely make his way through the tall grass without stepping on them.

From the present outlook this marshy region will be a hunter's paradise the coming fall and winter. There are several thousand acres in this immense hay bottom, and it has long been a famous resort and nesting place for aquatic fowls during food years.

Turn the Best Side Out.

The pessimist is not consistent. "Life has its wamy side," he declares, comparing life to a garment. Now he wouldn't think of wearing a garment with the wamy side out, yet he is continually presenting life in that way.—Boston Transcript.

Evening Mantles
Gorgeous Affairs

Velvet, Brocaded and Plain, of Metal Brocade and Metal Lace.

Evening mantles may be described in brief as gorgeous affairs, brilliant in color and splendid in materials, seemingly more appropriate for winter, serves a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. They are of velvet, brocaded and plain, of metal brocade and metal lace. In resume, we may say that every material is used from fur to lace. Metal lace is a rival to metal cloth as the favored and most elegant medium. Sometimes the two are combined.

Collars offer as much variety as the form of the wrap. The collarless wrap for evening as well as for afternoon wear, has not met with much success. Every woman realizes that nothing is so becoming as the frame formed for the face by a high collar. This is one of the reasons why wraps with the standing collar have met with such great success.

The idea of a puff taken in a bias way over a roll—a bourrelet, as the French call it—is the simplest and most general form. There are some collars of fur, skunk or sable, but the fancy collar is of material worked in some ingenious way, often with the insertion of flowers or of strips of fur or perhaps of velvet intermingling with the material when it is of a delicate nature such as lace or chiffon.

A charming idea used by one designer is the torsade of two materials softly taken around a bourrelet. In fact, any of these collars is very much softer and prettier than the hard plaited collar of the material introduced last season, which must, however, be acknowledged as the pioneer of present styles.

Another youthful idea is the ribbon wrap. This is of various widths of crimson velvet ribbon, the widest, at the hem, being about nine inches. These are stitched upon a voile almon background of the same shade, with about one-half inch of distance between each ribbon. The wrap is three-quarters length, the narrowest widths of ribbon, about one inch, being at the point where the wrap reaches the collar, to which it is gathered quite full. This collar is formed of alternating rows of milk tulle and puffs of velvet.

Hose and 'Kerchiefs
Are of Scotch Plaid

Quite the most startling of sports stockings are those showing vivid plaids. They are made of silk more often than of wool, and, judging from the prominence they have received in the displays of the shops, they will be fairly usual at country clubs before the season closes.

The plaids worn in sports clothes may be quite Scotch, but the fad for wearing them comes from France. Seemingly the French woman has not grown tired of them. Plaid materials are used for various sorts of small sports hats. For summer days there are frocks of Indian cottons displaying very large and very loud plaids in the brightest hues. Quite new are large handkerchiefs on the bandanna order printed with large Scotch or near-Scotch plaids.

How Good Floor Wax

May Be Made at Home

A good floor wax is made as follows: One pint turpentine, four ounces aqua ammonia, one pint water. The beeswax and turpentine are placed in a vessel which is set in hot water until the beeswax is dissolved. Of course, they should not be placed near a fire, as turpentine is inflammable. As the beeswax dissolves the mixture should be stirred vigorously. Then the ammonia and water should be added gradually and stirring should be continued until a creamy mixture is obtained. The wax is best applied to the floor by being placed in a double cheesecloth bag. In 20 minutes the floor should be polished, preferably with a weighted floor brush.

Water Secret of Sheffield Steel.

Sheffield in England, is still credited with making the finest steel in the world. Its virtues are attributed partly to the secrets known only to the manufacturers there, and partly to the water, used for tempering it.

Believe in Love
at First Sight?

MANY people do. And no doubt it happens often. For many a man is peculiarly attracted by a woman's complexion, by the beauty of her hair, or by the loveliness of her hands. And such attraction continues long after marriage.

Most women realize how important such items of personal appearance are in making an impression on others. And realizing, for example, that their hands are made red, rough and coarse by the use of common household soap which irritates the skin, they are as careful about the kind of household soap they buy as they are about their toilet soap.

THIS is why intelligent women insist upon Kirkman's Soap for all their household and laundry uses. They know that Kirkman's is as harmless to the hands as the most exquisite toilet soap.

Kirkman's is free from lye to redden and coarsen the hands. It is made of the purest and finest materials. It contains no adulterants such as starch, talcum powder or water glass, which have no cleansing value.

For every household purpose, Kirkman's Soap is a most thorough cleanser. Its unique cleansing properties mix with every atom of water in your washtub so that you have genuine washing energy at the very bottom of the tub as well as in the luxurious, billowing suds at the top. For the sake of your hands, insist upon Kirkman's Soap.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Sept. 26.—A very large number of members of Ida McKinley Council, Daughters of America convened Wednesday evening, September 19th, for its regular session and a great surprise was in store. During their last meeting, while grand session was in order at Syracuse, a surprise reception was planned to show the appreciation of the members to Mrs. Suzanne Decker, who was unanimously elected as associate state councillor of D. of A. She stands for fraternity, humanity and every principle that the order stands for. She believes life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things and the high ideals of the order, can only be attained by patient striving year after year. The meeting opened in due form with Mrs. Viola Conable, as councillor. She very cordially welcomed the state officer and also extended to the representative, Mrs. Louise Sheeley, and trustee, Lorin Schantz, the fraternal welcome. The representative gave a very fine report of transactions at convention and all were delighted with same. She thanked members for honor of electing her a representative and as she finished Mrs. D. H. Kurtz presented her with a beautiful bouquet in behalf of members of No. 65. Mrs. Kurtz expressed to her the friendship and loyalty of members to her and in return she thanked all for courtesies and wished for all years of happiness. Mrs. Decker was then called on. She expressed her appreciation of the fine reception and banquet tendered by home council and gave as usual many funny experiences while away. The kind deeds, kind words and pleasant memories of all these make glad the heart. During the trip and stay at Syracuse, she was accompanied by members of the order whose presence was a source of pleasure. Every conceivable courtesy was extended to these people and the home council certainly acknowledged and appreciate the honor of a state officer in their midst. She received hearty congratulations and expressed the assurance of her best endeavors to make the administration redound to the advancement of Daughters of America. The recording secretary advanced and in behalf of the members presented her with a large basket decorated with the national colors and filled with choice flowers. This was a testimonial of regard and esteem from her co-laborers. Mrs. Decker accepted the gift very appreciatively and hoped that the loving ties might be more firmly cemented than ever before and that the year may be filled with happy surprises. Lorin Schantz gave remarks in regard to the convention which were appreciated when the gavel fell. All knew what was next. Tables were brought in and the committee just worked like beavers and when finished and ready to eat it seemed there was nothing lacking and a merry party assembled around the festive board and just kept eating until they could hold no more. Mrs. Decker received at state session handsome gifts of linen, embroidery, picture, silver, gold and beautiful beaded bag, all from D. of A. and Eastern Star members. They will always be treasured highly as reminders of Syracuse D. of A. Convention in which she holds honor for the middle part of the state.

SURVEY BEING MADE OF STATE PRISON WORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 27.—In an effort to place the state prison industries on a sound basis, the State Board of Estimate and Control, of which Joseph H. Wilson is research director, is co-operating with the New York State Association in making a thorough and comprehensive survey of the work done in the penal institutions.

Governor Smith has taken a very determined stand in the matter. He believes all information about the prison industries, if it is to be of any value, must be secured at first hand.

Research Director Wilson is now on a tour of the various state institutions. When he returns to Albany the first of next month it is expected he will have secured much valuable information for use in the survey.

State Superintendent of Prisons, Charles F. Kattigan, and the heads of the various state institutions have pledged their aid to make the survey of real value to the state.

SERGEANT ADKINS IS CHAMPION SHOT

The greatest long-range marksman in the world is the little given Sergt. John W. Adkins of the United States marine corps, now stationed at the marine barracks, Washington, where he is studying for an officer's commission. He holds two world records for long-range shooting, both made at the championship matches at Camp Perry, O. While shooting at 1,000 yards, Sergeant Adkins hit the bull's eye 73 consecutive times. The former record was 39. He enlisted at Seattle, Wash., in January, 1917.

Do You Believe This?
In the early days of baseball (1850 and 1860), an umpire was highly honored, was accorded the utmost courtesy by the players, and accepted as one of the distinguished men of the city. An easy chair was provided him near the home plate, and he was given a fan on hot days. Absolute comfort for an umpire was uppermost in the minds of the players.

Ernest Calbert, outfielder of the Decatur team, will have employment during the winter and early spring, for he has been engaged as athletic coach for a high school in Decatur.

Outfielder Leo Payne is going up again. Last fall the Grand Rapids club sold him to Indianapolis. Later he was shipped to Fort Smith, from which club Grand Rapids bought him back. Now Grand Rapids has sold him to Rochester.

There must be some special diet for second basemen in Chicago that makes them fast on their feet. Eddie Collins of the White Sox and George Grantham of the Cubs lead both leagues in stolen bases. They must eat hops three meals a day.

Chick Evans as Model

Chick Evans, noted golf star, was selected as the model for the going figure surmounting a sun dial, which is to be dedicated in Jackson park, Chicago, by the golfing fraternity of the Chicago district, as emblematic of "the spirit of the game." Evans is said to most truly typify the spirit of golf and the sun dial is to be a constant reminder for all generations of this great sport.

Jacobson says a light club does not put quite so much weight behind the wallop, but it can be moved faster and he feels he can get enough beef back of it to make the sphere travel.

BANCROFT IS NAMED AS BEST SHORTSTOP

Maranville of Pirates Also Included Among Leaders.

Out on the field directing the defensive play, neither John McGraw, the manager, nor his first assistant, Hughie Jennings, could do from their places on the bench, all season has been Dave Bancroft, field captain of the Giants.

"Bancroft" is listed by many of the competent critics of the game to be the greatest shortstop in baseball today. The teams that have won pennants with a poor, or even mediocre man at shortstop—the pivot of the defense—are few and those that have come through winners of the world's series virtually all had topnotchers. Baseball writers have been casting about for the man most valuable to his team of all the major leaguers and a number mention Bancroft, placing him in the class with Joe Tinker, of the old Cubs; Hans Wagner, of the Pirates; Rabbit Maranville, of Pittsburgh and Boston; Jack Barry, of the Athletics and Red Sox, and a greater player than Arthur Fletcher, who was Bancroft's predecessor.

The Giant captain is of first-class caliber, both on the defense and offense and as a field general. As a lead-off man he ranks with the best of all time. He covers an amazingly large area in the field and is a sterling, dangerous runner on the bases. He is considered quite a bit better than the cold figures show him to be. He began his career as a poor batter and his rise has been due to his superior fielding and inspirational defense.

Director George Huff to Get Varsity Letter

George Huff, director of athletics at the University of Illinois, was a member of the 1890 and 1892 football teams and of the basketball nine of 1890, 1891, 1893 and 1895. Besides, he was captain and manager of the 1891 baseball team and captain in 1898. But it has developed that he never received an "A" as a reward.

Many other old-time athletes are without the coveted emblem of athletic service. After a search of the records it was found that no athletes before 1896 received the traditional honor.

As one of the features of the homecoming program this year the old grads will receive their belated emblems at the big rally celebrating the opening of the stadium, November 3.

Sisler Finds Golf Ball Much Easier to Smash

Is it more difficult to hit a stationary golf ball than a baseball whizzed through the air with terrific speed? George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns is convinced that it is much easier to hit a golf ball than a baseball. During the summer Sisler, who has been unable to play baseball because of eye trouble, has indulged in a lot of golf. He plays an excellent game and is a long driver.

Sisler hopes that his eyes will be so improved during the winter that he will be back in action next spring.

Major Leagues Badly in Need of Good Managers

The major leaguers are badly in need of managers—men who can take rather ordinary clubs and pilot them into first or second places. The big trouble is that there are so few places for the first and second teams. And there is such little chance for most of the teams getting that far ahead. The average American office boy, with a penchant for comparing the details of the dope, knows that most of the teams have not a chance for first or second place. It does take a miracle for most clubs to win.

COFFIN DENIES LAWYERS' CHARGE

That He Induced Sobin Girl to Sign Unread Paper—She Is Staying at Sheriff's Home Voluntarily.

Recent charges by attorneys for Anna Sobin, 16, nursemaid held as material witness by Greene county officials in investigation of the Rothenberg murder, that the girl had been induced to sign an unread statement on the promise of freedom, were denied Wednesday night by District Attorney Charles E. Coffin.

The girl was taken before Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley at Albany Monday afternoon by Sheriff Albert W. Pierce on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by her attorney, Edward B. Twardus. The hearing was adjourned until 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

District Attorney Coffin's statement read:

"Anna Sobin came to my office in the court house Monday afternoon at my request. She was not asked to sign an unread paper, nor was she asked to sign any papers on the promise of release.

"Miss Sobin is treated with the utmost courtesy at the home of the sheriff. She is treated like one of the family. She has not been incarcerated and has been given the best attention.

"She came to Catskill voluntarily and has willingly stayed. She has shown uneasiness only at the promises of Twardus and Wolisky, her attorneys.

"She has repeatedly stated that she likes it at the sheriff's residence. She wished to come to Catskill, and she has said she wishes to remain to assist us as much as possible in the investigation of the murder.

"That the sheriff was not present Monday should not be a subject for criticism. I have simply followed the precedent of talking with witnesses in my office with those present necessary for such a conference."

Frank W. Brooks of this city has been assisting in the investigation since William E. Thorpe, assistant district attorney, turned the case over to his chief at the end of the latter's illness. Detective John Sweeney of Newark and two state troopers also are working on the case.

Herr Gessler.

Herr Gessler, Minister of War in the German Republic, and a member of the German cabinet, in an address before the Democratic party, in Berlin, declared that civil war in Germany is practically inevitable. Herr Gessler said the outbreak might be expected any day and that the government would be solidly supported by the Reichswehr in the crisis.

The Meanest Man

The meanest man in the world has once more been located. This time he turns out to be an eastern business man who stole a newspaper from a blind newsboy every morning for four months. He wore rubber-soled shoes and would take a paper from the lad's stock without saying a word. But he was finally trapped, and it gave a policeman much pleasure to hear him off to the bastille. There a judge also found satisfaction in sending him the limit. It would have been a paper had he not scribbled for the paper.

RESPECTED UPTOWN POLE OUTLIVES ITS USEFULNESS

If you had been in the habit of posting your letters in the mail box which was attached to the big pole at the corner of Fair and Main streets and suddenly on Wednesday the letter box disappeared you might be considerably alarmed as were a number of people who happened along shortly before noon. The letter carrier who collects from this particular box was one of those who was surprised when he came to collect the mail and found no box.

A half a dozen members of the Ulster County Bar who stood conferring near the corner noticed the postman's anxiety and came to the rescue with valuable advice. Each volunteered to be a witness to the fact that there was no box there when the carrier came to collect the mail and also to the fact that none of their fellow lawyers had caused the box to suddenly disappear.

Later in the day the mystery was solved when a gang of linemen came along and completed the job by taking down the big pole itself. The street corner is certainly much more sightly with the removal of the pole which has now become necessary since the wires have been removed and placed out of sight. For years the pole had done duty as a carrier of wires, as a place to attach a mail box and also a fire alarm station to tell how cold it was in the summer it was also official to tell how hot it was. For years there has been a thermometer attached to the pole.

ELABORATE PREPARATIONS TO RECEIVE PAPYRUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 27.—Arrangements to care for Papyrus, the English Derby winner, upon his arrival in this country tomorrow on the Aquitania, have been completed with the announcement that the colt will be conveyed from the dock to J. E. Widener's imported horse van. A special gang plank, covered with heavy matting and crests, has been erected so that the colt's landing can be effected with safety and comfort.

Papyrus will be taken directly from the dock to Belmont Park where he will be quartered in J. S. Cosden's stables until October 10, the day of his race with America's leading three year old, to be selected later.

COOLIDGE MEETS
WESTERN FARMERS

Their Tales of Mortgage and Bankruptcy and Plan for Government Stabilization of Wheat and Flour Prices.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 27.—The first of a series of important conferences with President Coolidge plans with farm leaders all over the country to formulate remedial measures for the economic betterment of the agricultural industry, was held at the White House today.

A delegation of farmers and bankers from Northwestern states, here the most insistent demands have been made for immediate grain legislation. They asked particularly for passage of legislation giving the United States Grain Corporation, with an appropriation of $50,000,000, which, as during the war, would take over and distribute the entire wheat crop.

This corporation would tend to stabilize the grain market that prices for wheat would increase materially, thus relieving one of the most distressing farm ills, President Coolidge was told.

The recommendations made by the secretary of Agriculture Wallace to the cabinet to lower freight rates on wheat and flour for export and to increase the tariff wheat were approved and adoption was urged by the delegation upon President Coolidge as further means to alleviate that was termed the most deplorable agricultural situation which is confronted the country since the world war.

A sorrowful picture was painted of the general farm conditions, especially in the northwest. Coolidge is informed that "thousands of foreclosures and bankruptcies among farmers are imminent unless something is done at once to stimulate agricultural and aid the farmers."

Representative George M. Young, Republican North Dakota, headed the committee which represented the fifth federal reserve district, embracing Minnesota, North and South Dakota, northern Wisconsin, and the Northern Peninsula of Michigan.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Governor Eugene M. Young, Jr., chairman of the War Finance Corporation, were called into the conference by the president.

The personnel of the delegation included A. D. Stevens, Crookston, Minn.

M. J. Holberg, St. Paul; Frank Clague, Redwood Falls, Minn.; Andrew Hopper, Webster, S. D.; C. N. Herried, Aberdeen, S. D.; G. H. Garret, St. Thomas, S. D.; James A. Buchanan, Buchanan, S. D.; Frank Sanford, Valley City, N. D.; A. B. Nensul, Jamestown, N. D.; Al Stone, Dilmon, Mont. and W. F. Jordan, Glen Dale, Mont.

BABIES ARE SWITCHED;
UNKNOWN HAS ONE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Detroit, Sept. 27.—Two nurses, two fathers and a mother today unraveled one of the queerest stories that police declared they ever heard after William Greatrix sought police aid in finding his missing baby, given away by mistake to the wrong parents at Evangelical Deaconess Hospital.

The babies are said to have been switched shortly after birth. Eva Viomminich, 18, and her father, Alphonse, 51, are held for investigation.

Greatrix, whose wife died shortly after the missing baby was born, discovered the switch when he went to the hospital to claim the child.

On August 29, Alphonse sent Eva to the hospital where a boy was born. His story, as related to police, follows:

"When Eva left the hospital we decided to leave the child there because we didn't want my two sons to know. Saturday I stood in a saloon when I overheard one man telling another that he and his wife had been married five years but that they had no children. The man expressed a desire for a child so I told him if he would meet me at the rear of the hospital that night I would give him my daughter's child. Then just before the appointed time, I went to the hospital and asked for my daughter's baby."

"They gave me the one that is missing. I met the man, who was an utter stranger to me. I gave him the child and he told me that he and his wife were leaving for Pennsylvania that night. In my eagerness to get rid of the baby, I did not inquire as to the man's name or where he was going. I have no idea where Greatrix's baby is. All I know is that I gave the baby to that strange man."

SOVIETS TO BACK
GERMAN REDS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Moscow, Sept. 27.—Another world war involving Germany, France, Russia and Poland is inevitable if any foreign power interferes with plans for a Red revolution in Germany, officials of the Third Internationale claimed today.

The Third Internationale is considering the German communists' appeal for assistance. It is likely a decision will be reached before the end of the week. The German government's unconditional surrender to France upon the reparations issue undoubtedly will hasten events.

German Red leaders have been advised informally not to attempt to seize the Berlin government at present, but they have been promised such aid as Russia may be able to offer, in event an uprising takes place immediately.

Formal action by the Soviets depends largely upon the attitude of the powers in event of a communist revolution in Germany.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS
PEEKSKILL SATURDAY.

The Kingston High School football team on Saturday goes up against the Peekskill team and this is going to be one of the important games for the season for the local boys. Captain William O'Reilly has been suffering from blood poisoning in his leg but probably will be able to play in Saturday's game. Dr. L. R. Hancock, who is caring for O'Reilly, expects to have him in shape for the contest.

That a Man Be Found Faithful.
Let a man to account of us, as of the ministers of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God. Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful. But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment; yea, I judge not mine own self. But he that judgeth me is the Lord.—1 Corinthians 4:1-4.

hearing after her almost complete collapse of yesterday.

"Mrs. Ward insisted upon being at the side of her husband today above all days."

Sherman began the state's closing argument at 10:05 o'clock. He plunged into a dramatic review of the past as it related to the issue.

"I have no apology to make for this prosecution," Sherman began, answering Judge Miller's charge of "unfairness" on the part of the state.

"Ward has said he always wanted a trial before a jury. Here was his chance—this is his trial. He could have told his mythical story here."

"You swore in your oath as jurors that you would not be swayed by sympathy, and I hold you as men to that oath," Sherman said.

He grew bitter in his attack on Miller for his plea of sympathy, made in the name of Mrs. Ward, and the accused man's two children.

Sherman's preliminary remarks were brief and then he plunged into the evidence in the case.

The weapons were Sherman's first point.

"Walter Ward surrendered himself, thinking he could put himself over here, but you can't get away from the fact that it was his finger which pulled the trigger of the gun which killed Clarence Peters," said Sherman.

Sherman held the death gun in his hands—his finger on the trigger, illustrating with oratorical, dramatic effect the story of the killing.

different service, shiftlessness, lack of responsibility, lack of thrift, etc.

Among the major diseases, which were carelessness, forgetfulness, hurry, extravagance, etc., and the illustrations were most forceful.

Finally a major disease considered was Bolshevism, which the speaker summed up as "You work and earn a good, and I will come along and eat for you."

In summing up his address, Dr. Horner considered the public schools as the clinics where these diseases are to be treated in their incipient conditions with the teachers as the physicians and surgeons for the diseases of the body politic.

The afternoon session included two addresses, one on "School Lunches," by Miss Mary McCormick, the other on "The Teachers' Ethical Code," by Dr. van den Berg.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

(By Telegram to The Freeman)

New York, Sept. 27.—Stimulated by yesterday's favorite dividend action on Baltimore and Ohio, the whole railroad list displayed strength today. Baltimore and Ohio rose 2 points to 57, Northern Pacific 1 1/2 to 53 1/2, Union Pacific 1/2 to 129 1/2, Southern Pacific 3/4 to 57 1/2, Southern Railway 3/4 to 34 1/2, and St. Louis and San Francisco preferred 3/4 to 43 1/2. The industrial list opened slightly irregular. United States Steel yielded 1/4 to 87 1/2, Gulf States Steel 1/4 to 75 1/2, and American Locomotive up 1/4 to 70. Studebaker lost 1/4 to 97 1/2, but Mack Truck rose 1/4 to 75 1/2. Sinclair Oil rose 1/4 to 17 1/2, Producers and Refiners 1/4 to 23 1/2, and California Petroleum 1/4 to 19.

Interest in the afternoon trading was chiefly centered on the railroad group, which followed a display of bullish strength, receding along with the sagging tendency which developed in the industrial list. Baltimore and Ohio rose 2 points to 57, but later yielded about 1 point. The remainder of the list was steady, with Northern Pacific at 54 1/2, Southern Pacific 56 1/2, and Great Northern preferred at 54 1/2 fractionally lower.

Price movements in the industrial list again testified to the purely professional character of recent transactions.

Stocks were subjected to pressure at intervals in the afternoon trading, but transactions were small and without significance.

Cooper-Hutton.

Jesse C. Cooper and Margaret Hutton were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at the Poughkeepsie Congregational Church by the pastor, the Rev. F. W. Moot.

The bride party were attended by Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Webber and a group of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will reside at their summer home, Alder Lake, and their winter home on Highland avenue. The groom is an employee of the Cokendall estate at Alder Lake.

Celebrated First Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Van Kleef and baby, Everett, Jr., of Kingston, celebrated the baby's first birthday Sunday to the baby's first birthday with 15 great-grandmothers, Mrs. Isaiah (Wolven, who is 90 years of age.

Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Clell Hommel of Palenville, aunt and uncle of the baby; Mr. and Mrs. John Simmons of Kingston, grandparents; Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hommel and daughter Edna, of Saugerties, cousins; and Miss Celia Wallace of Derby, Conn., also a cousin.

After a delightful birthday dinner, the crowning feature of which was a large birthday cake topped with one candle, the guests presented the baby with many pretty toys and useful presents, among them a handsome cup, which was quickly filled with shining silver by his loving friends, while wishing him many more happy birthdays.

Spalt-Greenburg.

Miss Lulu Greenburg and Carl J. Spalt, both of this city, were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer by the pastor, the Rev. W. J. Nelson. During the service Professor Richens presided at the organ. The service was very largely attended by friends and relatives of the young couple. The bride was very prettily dressed in white crepe de chine, with a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried brides' roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Martha Greenburg, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid and wore a very beautifully gowned in pink crepe de chine and carrying pink roses. Henry J. Spalt, brother of the groom, was the best man. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride on Third avenue. The newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls. They will reside in a newly built house on Third avenue.

Hammering Pipes.

Sometimes water-pipes seem to knock, or hammer. This is usually due to the presence of air in the pipe. The supply has perhaps been turned off at the main and the water drawn off, in which case the pipe has become full of air. The turning on of the tap will then bring about a conflict between the air and water, the latter "hammering" as it were, against anything like a bend that stops its progress. Or again, the sudden shutting off of a tap may bounce a ball valve, causing the ball to jump in the stream. Its motion being transmitted all down the pipe it serves.

What is Islam?

An Arabic word, meaning "complete and entire submission of body and soul to God. His will and His service, as well as to all those articles of faith, commands, and ordinances revealed to and ordained by Mohammed. His prophet. It is the proper name of the religion, generally known as Mohammedanism, and consists in an observance of the following five duties: Declaring that there is but one God; reciting prayers daily; giving legal alms; observing the month of Ramadan as a fast; making one pilgrimage to Mecca during a lifetime.

Magic.

By using high explosives, government chemists turn leaves and leaves of trees into iron. For instance, a leaf can be pasted to an iron bowl and, while the explosive destroys the original leaf, it is reproduced in all details as a design on the iron. This magical process enslaves molecules flying four miles a second during the explosion. It suggests that the greatest discoveries of the next century will be microscopic. Chemistry, by the way, is the biggest field open to youth. We are in the first phase of a laboratory civilization.

Splendid Substitute for Words.

Little swear-words in form not unlike the Burman prayer wheels, are now in use on the golf links in Kashmir. They are conducive to silence, as, when one misses a particularly good stroke, one takes the wheel hurriedly from the caddy and violently turns it around.—Delhi Morning Post.

Bon Mots Here and There.

A writer whose work is not of a kind that sells widely says "he does not care how poor he is so long as he lives in luxury." "Boy or girl?" a well-known editor's wife asked her husband concerning the newly born child of a couple with whom they were acquainted. "I don't know," he replied, "trying hard to think: 'guess they haven't named it yet.'"—The Bookman.

ZANZIBAR, Isle of Cloves

Breaking Cloves From the Stems; Zanzibar.

prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.

Zanzibar, romantic melting pot off the east coast of Africa, a sort of island vestible to Kenya, England's latest colony, does not share the upstart conditions of that mainland region which has recently kept the British cabinet in hot water. Nominally under its sultan, and largely ruled by a British high commissioner and a British resident, the island goes on the more or less serene way of the transplanted East, furnishing plots for comic operas and cloves for most of the spice-loving world.

Hundreds of tourists and government employees, on the manifold errands of empire, see the town of Zanzibar without knowing much of it or ever exploring beyond the English tennis club. But this is less remarkable than the fact that merchants, priests, secular missionaries, military and diplomatic personages, Indians, Arabs, Persians and Europeans (as inconspicuous artisans or petty traders) actually live in the town year in and year out without so much as walking half a mile beyond the terminus of the little American railway at Bu-bu-bu, a village a few miles from the town itself.

The precedent for this neglect—and the social fabric of Zanzibar is dependent on precedent—is undoubtedly the indifference of the early explorers, who fitted out caravans in the old town and bent on discovering a volcano or a nyanza far afield, never wasting time in wandering about the glorious island itself.

On the first day that one leaves the road behind and finds oneself at large in the dense green of Zanzibar's titanic verdure one is conscious of a newness of interest as when one reads for the first time some book of very distinctive imaginative quality.

The woods and fields, the "shambas" (plantations), are like the contents of a Broddingnagian glass house; the colors of flowers and trees themselves are so elementary as to seem like a child's concept of beauty in nature, and when, unexpectedly, without preparation of any kind, the sight of the clove trees, shining green, red-stemmed, symmetrical, stretches before one, with the ultramarine of the Indian ocean as a background for their unequalled loveliness, the beauty of the whole writes itself on the memory of the most commonplace of observers as an indelible delight.

As Large as Long Island.

The island, about the same size in square miles as Long Island, is of a different shape, being shorter and much broader. It is one of Great Britain's precolonies.

To the south of the town the landscape is not so redundant and riotous in vegetable expression, but goats abound and find all they need in the way of food to make them marketable.

But to the north the mango trees, palms, cloves and every form of orange and lemon crowd thick and glorious under the most primitive of husbandmen. Just as Africa itself is netted over with aimless footpaths, so is Zanzibar veined with little tracks worn deep into the living green so long ago that no tradition follows the feet of those who made them.

The industrial life of Zanzibar has changed three times since David Livingstone cried for mercy for the black man, who sorely needed it. Under the Arabs the town was a slave center, where the poor creatures who were caught in the course of one of Tippoo Tib's "war walks" into the interior were brought to the island carrying ivory, and prepared by various heavy-handed methods for service as slaves on the Persian gulf or in the shambas and warehouses of Zanzibar itself.

The Arabs achieved the best negroes imaginable, whatever their methods may have been, and when England ruined Tippoo Tib by her slave regulations ivory took the place of slaves as a trade staple, and dealers from hither and you brought their ivory for sale to the quahar Arab town, whose sanitation was then a by-word of the East.

The bodies of dead slaves were frequently put out on the beach by Arabs for caste reasons.

Two Dutch ships brought them in an unusually short time, and the sultan, the most remarkable man Zanzibar has ever produced, associated with his fortunes, sent out numbers of his henchmen to compel laborers from every side to get the plants into the soil immediately. He had read up the whole subject in a book of French authorship, which he had caused to be written out in Arabic, and saw that the enterprise had a great mercantile future for Zanzibar. He knew that the island's supremacy as a trade center would pass, and he hoped to make

IS SLUMPING

Best of Team Following Ruth's Falling Average—Same Condition Existed Last Fall Before Big Series.

By Davis J. Walsh.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 27.—Just twelve months ago almost to the day, the New York Yankees were pleased to have themselves visited by a hitting famine that began a week before the end of the regular league season and ended on the final day of the world's series. They couldn't hit a medicine ball with a fly swatter, and in consequence, the Giant pitchers were made to appear better than they really were. History and election ballots have been known to repeat.
Likewise the Yankees.

Today, they are in another hitting slump, and even George H. Ruth, the well known left fielder, has become a party to the proposition. In fact, George has hit so infrequently of late that he has just about made himself a victim of self elimination in the race with Harry Heilmann for individual batting honors.

"I don't like the way the boys are swinging," declared Miller Huggins today. "The games of the last two days were all too reminiscent of last year when the team fell into a batting slump before the end of the campaign and carried it right through the world's series."

It is no star secret that when Mr.
Ruth hits, the team hits. When he doesn't they don't. Seemingly it would be the height of presumption to sock one on the hip when the noble fellow himself is unable to do likewise.

Ruth has been in a hitting slump for more than a month. In late August, he was batting in the neighborhood of .150 and today his average is .345 and subject to sinking spells. It was much the same last year, only more so.

On that occasion, Ruth went into the world's series with a hand wagon and emerged to the plaintive notes of a piccolo solo. His average was something .128 and this in spite of the fact that McGraw had a staff of pitchers that operated on the theory of three-no-count. Seldom was the original napper able to finish what he started during the regular season; yet the world's series witnessed a source of notable performances by Art Nehf, Jess Barnes,
John Scott and Hugh McQuillen.

The answer must have gone forward there than the mere overright ability of these men to pitch according to major league standards. In fact, it went all the way back to the difficulty of nine Yankees to hit a medicine ball with a fly swatter.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Pelham Country Club, N. Y.

there remained today only such big

A five run rally in the tenth gave the Tigers two straight over the Yanks, 8 to 3.
The Cardinals rushed Vance off the premises in two innings, beating the Dodgers, 7 to 5.
The Indians came back like an unpaid bill and took two from the Athletics, 5 to 3 and 6 to 2.
Davis limited the Red Sox to four hits but issued five passes, hit a batter and made a wild throw, the Browns losing, 3 to 2.
Walter Johnson shut the White Sox out, 1 to 0.

PO'KEEPSIE GIVEN AN EVEN CHANCE

The Newburgh News says:
Officers of the "Duso" League, which controls school athletics in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh, Middletown and Port Jervis, at a meeting on Saturday afternoon clar-ified the eligibility rule as it applies to Poughkeepsie. It was the feeling of the officers that the Poughkeepsie athletes were at a disadvantage in that they had only one way of meeting league requirements for eligibility.
Whereas the players of the other schools might qualify in two separate sets of tests.
Poughkeepsie graduates and promotes its students on regents' counts only, while the other schools conduct graduation and promotion by either school or regents' counts or both.
Because of the difference of promotion in the schools, a Newburgh athlete might fall in the regents' and pass the school test, thus being eligible, while a Poughkeepsie student,
if he should fail to pass the regents' examination in any subject has no alternative but to become ineligible.
To remedy this, the "Duso"
League on Saturday decided to accept the certification of the Poughkeepsie school authorities that students, who failed to pass 12 1/2 counts of regents' work last year, are eligible. It is understood, of course, that this approval will not be made of any player who failed to keep up the standard in his work
last year.

HOLD DIPHTHERIA
CLINIC FRIDAY

Arrangements for holding the first of a series of free clinics to ward off diphtheria have been arranged. All children attending the clinic at the city hall Friday afternoon must be accompanied by either a parent or guardian. The toxin-anti-toxin will be administered by Dr. Daniel Connelly, health officer of the city, who will be assisted by trained nurses.

RABBI IN CONTROVERSY
TO LEAVE POUGHKEEPSIE

Rabbi Morris Clark in his last sermon at Vassar Temple, Poughkeepsie, Tuesday said he was leaving Poughkeepsie because he was denied the right of speech. Rabbi Clark, who resigned his post, said that worshipping God was a lost art and the very people who criticized him because he did not retain the old customs in the synagogue spent Yom Kippur at the theatre. Rabbi Clark leaves Poughkeepsie this week. He has received a number of excellent offers as he is noted for his ability as a public speaker and an accomplished musician.

Eclipse Two Years Hence.

Poughkeepsie will be in the direct path of a total eclipse of the sun
January 24, 1925. Miss Caroline E.
Furness of the astronomy department of Vassar College stated Tuesday. Although the eclipse is more than a year away preparations are already being considered to determine the best way to determine the phenomenon. The eclipse will take place at 9 o'clock in the morning and last one and three-quarters minutes.
Professor Furness declared.

To Ask Increase For Firemen.

An increase of $150 a year for all paid firemen in the city of Poughkeepsie will be asked by Chief C. W.
Noll when he appears before the Board of Aldermen with the budget estimate for his department Monday night next. The men now are working 72 hours every six days at an average of $1 cents an hour. With the asked increase the salary will then be $1550 a year.

Miss Louise Wells

When the Fifth Annual Convention of the American Legion opens in San Francisco on October 15 the Legionnaires will be greeted by Miss Louise Wells, National President of the Women's Overseas Service
League, who will officially represent the women at the convention.

Two in New York Positions.

Miss Anne Roach, a highly efficient graduate of the Moran Business School, Burgevin Building, Fair and Main streets, has accepted a lucrative position as private secretary in the office of the McGraw Book Company, Inc., New York city. Since leaving Kingston, Miss Roach gained valuable experience in a secretarial capacity with the Cosmopolitan Magazine, in which position she is succeeded by Miss Marguerite Carey, formerly of this city, whose splendid qualifications have won for her marked success since her graduation from the Moran Business School.

Water At Lake Hill.

The Schults house at Lake Hill is being equipped with a modern water system operated by a Hercules gasoline engine furnished by the Canfield Supply Co.

Hard to Assemble.

Good intentions and "do it now"
are hard to get together.

Soap Making.

The art of soap making is very old.
Pliny refers in his writings to both hard and soft soap. Remains of a soap maker's shop were discovered in the ruins of Pompeii. Before the invention of soap making the juices of certain plants were used as cleansing agents. Fuller's earth was also used.
The method being to spread it over the garment to be cleaned and then to stamp it in with the foot.
